“THE MOST SATISFYING MOMENTS WHEN I VOLUNTEER”

Helping others.
Keeping me busy.
Pleasing them.
Being with people.
The personal chats.
Getting to know them.
The people themselves.
Seeing their smiling face.
It all seems good to me.
Being helpful and useful.
My people enjoy my service.
Doing what we can for others.
Meeting and serving the people.
Their saying, “Thanks for Helping”.
Reason to get up in the morning.
The patrons that appreciate the help.
Helping people is very rewarding.
Seeing the smiles on their faces.
Seeing how much I am appreciated.
The look on their face when they see me.
Makes me feel good – my client also
Seeing them smile and being happy that I am there.
Just seeing the smiles on the people’s face.
Recognition by a client – smiles and a response.
Knowing my efforts are needed and appreciated.
Helping others do things to make their lives better.
Seeing them smile and being happy that I am there.
The smiles and love that shines in the residents faces.
Making the people I volunteer with happy that I am there.
When people don’t feel so lonely and forgotten living alone.
To know how glad my client is to see me, who enjoys my company.
Seeing and hearing them say how they feel there is hope in their life.
Seeing the faces of the residents and their feeling they have for you.
Being with some great people, they are always courteous, kind and accepting of me.
Being with people who need companionship that I could give to help them feel better.
To see the faces of the people how they look so happy and they tell you what they are satisfied.
Helping others is also helping me. Listening, the smiles, laughter, visits are indeed good for us.
Seeing the people smile and they are so happy to see me when I walk in and ask when I leave (is it time to go already?)”
